Michael Grebe, president and CEO of the Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation in Milwaukee, has been named the chairman of Milwaukee County Executive Scott Walker's campaign for governor in 2010.

Grebe served on the Bradley Foundation board of directors for six years before being named as president. Prior to joining the conservative foundation, Grebe was the chairman and CEO of Foley & Lardner, one of the country's largest law firms, where he was a partner for more than 25 years.

"Wisconsin voters aren't satisfied with the direction our state is headed and neither am I," Grebe said in a statement. "Scott Walker is the candidate for governor who best represents our opportunity to bring prosperity back to families and employers across this great state."

Grebe is also chairman of the Greater Milwaukee Committee, a business and civic organization that is active in the region's economic debate, and the Milwaukee 7 regional economic development advisory council.

Walker intends to run for governor of Wisconsin as a Republican. Walker said more than 150 current and former Republican Party officials and 48 Assembly and Senate GOP legislators have endorsed his candidacy.
