Federal Judge's Impeachment Lawyers Begin Defense

Judge Porteous impeachment lawyers begin mounting defense

The Associated Press by Ben Evans - September 17, 2010

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — Defense attorneys for a Louisiana judge facing an impeachment trial in Congress began trying to chip away at the case against him, arguing that money and other favors he accepted were simply part of the culture of a tight-knit New Orleans-area legal community. After three days laying out its case, the House team prosecuting U.S. District Judge G. Thomas Porteous rested Wednesday evening, leaving Porteous' attorneys to begin calling their own witnesses. Their first was Porteous' son, Timothy Porteous, who said two lawyers gave the judge thousands of dollars in cash over the years only because they were close family friends who once practiced law together. Another prosecution witness, Dane Ciolino, a Loyola University law professor specializing in judicial ethics, said that Louisiana standards for judges accepting meals and gifts from lawyers were loose and unclear until recent revisions to the law. Judges routinely dined on lawyers' tabs at expensive restaurants. "That's just the way things worked," Ciolino said. The House voted unanimously in March to bring impeachment charges against Porteous. A two-thirds vote is needed in the Senate to convict him. House prosecutors allege that Porteous was racking up debt as he struggled with drinking and gambling. They say he began accepting cash and other favors from people with business before his court, beginning with his time as a state judge and continuing after he was appointed to the federal bench in 1994.

Two New Orleans-area attorneys who once worked with Porteous testified that they gave the judge thousands of dollars in cash gifts while he was a judge, including about $2,000 stuffed in an envelope in 1999, just before Porteous decided a major civil case in their client's favor. The attorneys also said Porteous frequently sent court-appointed work to their firm with the expectation that they would return some of the fees to the judge. In addition, the lawyer Porteous hired for his 2001 bankruptcy discussed how he and Porteous initially filed the judge's bankruptcy under a made-up name, with a hastily arranged post office box as his address, to avoid publicity. House investigators say Porteous also lied about his debts and assets in an effort to lower his bankruptcy payments. New Orleans bail bondsman Louis Marcotte also described a long-standing relationship in which Marcotte routinely took Porteous to lavish meals at French Quarter restaurants and offered his employees to work on Porteous' cars and home. In return, Porteous manipulated bond amounts for defendants to give Marcotte the highest fees possible, said Marcotte, who served 18 months in prison on related corruption charges. Porteous also helped erase criminal convictions for two of Marcotte's employees, he said. The Senate trial is the first since the 1999 case against former President Bill Clinton. Porteous, who was appointed by Clinton, would be just the eighth judge to be impeached and convicted by Congress, and the first in more than 20 years. The Senate panel hearing the case, chaired by Sen. Claire McCaskill, D-Mo., planned to break until next week, with one or two more days of testimony expected. The committee will present the evidence to the full Senate later this year, with a final vote on Porteous' fate likely near the end of the year. Porteous' attorney, Jonathan Turley, told the committee in opening arguments that the judge's behavior, while perhaps reflecting poor judgment at times, doesn't meet the high crimes and misdemeanors standard set in the Constitution for impeachment.

NH Sen. Shaheen hears judge's impeachment trial

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New Hampshire Sen. Jeanne Shaheen says she feels a great sense of history and responsibility as she serves on a panel hearing the first impeachment trial of a federal judge in more than 20 years. Shaheen, a Democrat, is among 12 senators who began hearing the case Monday. They'll present facts to the full Senate, where a two-thirds vote is needed for conviction. One of the few non-lawyers on the panel, Shaheen says she brings her experience dealing with personnel issues as governor. --HOLLY RAMER, Associated Press Writer

Gee, only less than half as corrupt as a NY Judge. Corruption is learned at law school as seen in quote, "Dane Ciolino, a Loyola University law professor specializing in judicial ethics, said ... Judges routinely dined on lawyers' tabs at expensive restaurants. That's just the way things worked," Rotten to begin with.

If you thought you had a problem with a judge, it's nothing compared to what your life will be like after making a complaint against one.

Whoever said, 'hell hath nor furry like a woman scorned' they clearly never made a complaint against a judge or connected attorney.

I will go after any judge who is allowing these witch hunts to go on, you can not falsify people's medical records, to fit some psychotic story in someone's mind, you get innocents in trouble who are trying to protect.

You also get everyone investigated with the same name, with all the illegal billing that goes on, you guys are in trouble.

Maybe that is why she needs these children to spice up her clients businesses of sex.

Hey Andrew Cuomo how much do you get to look the other way from the rape and murder of children in New York State?

Why is it that ICES do not investigate Bernadette E. Lupinetti, Esq. for aiding and abetting sexual predators to put children in PORN, PROSTITUTION, DRUGS AND ALCOHOL?

Why is it that Bernadette E. Lupinetti, Esq. AKA the Pimp of the Orange County Court is allow to use a court of law for the trafficking of minors for sexual performances?

This blog has really degraded to shit. The Censor Frank Brady removes relevant conversations and responses but leaves mean spirited hate mail responses about Crystal Cox below. To those who have few words from limited vocabulary and can only express their own homophobia and homosexual desires (indication they are most likely gay and in the closet, in the prison of their own minds) by hating on homosexuality, I understand your comments from this point of view. What I do not understand is why you post your hate mail and requests for gay pornography pictures out in the open, exposing your deep desire to be gay publically when you hide it by attacking gays. You should run for political office or a spot as the Church Choir field trip guide.

As we know these comments originated from Kevin Hall and P Stephen Lamont who have both threatened Crystal Cox, Lamont even joining a hate group against her, my question is why post anonymous when she has already posted your hate mail and death threats against her all over the web??? Well KRH & PSL you two can stay in the closet and play your closeted games but we all know the truth about your latent homosexual desires, are you two together now, publically I mean.

You are mean spirited whoever wrote these hate mails against Crystal and I will be reporting these assaults to Federal Hate Crime Investigators as I have with your past threats. Frank, if you remove this post, I will be adding your name to the criminal complaint.

Westchester Braces for Onslaught of Federal Corruption Indictments

Informed sources have revealed that Westchester County, along with parts of Rockland, Bronx and Manhattan Counties, are about to be rocked by a series of corruption indictments. Federal Investigators have been working for nearly three years on the ever-growing and wide-spread list of charges, says the source. "The extent of public corruption in Westchester is staggering- a panoply of crime yet uncovered in the United States. The indictments will hit many of New York's most influential in politics, finance and the legal community." Starting October 29, 2009, we'll be highlighting some

Loose but not forgotten

By Michael | NY Daily News | 1/13/09

It's a little-known fact that the former Nassau County District Judge David Gross, who once served as the "bare minister" of organized crime members who appeared in his courtroom, admitted drugs in federal court that he conspired with an attorney to launder more than $400,000 in proceeds from stolen jewelry.

Gross, 45, pleaded guilty Friday to a money laundering conspiracy for his role in the scheme, which was uncovered by the FBI during an investigation into illegal gambling operations involving the Governor and Gambino crime families.

Gross, accompanied to court by his parents, found himself in the unenviable position of sitting at the defendant table and answering questions from U.S. Magistrate William Whitely as he entered his guilty plea.

Gross faces a maximum of 20 years in prison when he is sentenced by U.S. District Judge Arthur Kaplan on Oct. 16. However, federal prosecutors are recommending 27 to 48 months in prison.

Gross also agreed to surrender a 1999 Chrysler 300 sedan that he used to transport the laundered money, a pair of 1.2 karat diamond earrings given to him by an undercover federal agent, and $1,000 — the rest of the money.

In Fairness to the Courts...

It is not easy being a judge, and disgraceful that the public usually only hears about the bad judges. And while this forum attempts to expose the reprehensible acts of corrupt courts, it is important to be fair to the many under-appreciated law-abiding judges and court employees. Judges are grossly under compensated, and must rely heavily on unnamed staff who sometimes carry their own biases and improper political agendas. So let's expose and eradicate the corruption, but we are socially obligated to consider: (1) how do we get our judges adequately compensated; and (2) what specific and constructive suggestions can be made and implemented to insure the integrity of our courts. Send, too, ideas to make the courts a better system for all of us!!

Our year-long investigation has confirmed that the purported judicial "ethics" enforcer, The New York State Commission on Judicial Conduct, is itself a biased, corrupt group that protects certain judges while destroying others who have become targets of the political thugs who control them. Something is terribly wrong when even our honest and law-abiding judges are failed by our justice system.

The New York State system of justice is a corrupt process that has all but ruined the faith of the people in their government.
