Scott Sherr, Vice President of Corporate Development at Sony Pictures Entertainment has Stolen a 13 Trillion Dollar Technology

Scott Sherr is a Vice President of Corporate Development at Sony Pictures Entertainment.

"Scott Sherr

Vice President Sony Pictures Entertainment

Scott Sherr is a Vice President of Corporate Development at Sony Pictures Entertainment ("SPE"). Mr. Sherr has over eight years of experience in corporate finance, strategic planning, and mergers and acquisitions.

He originally joined Sony Pictures Entertainment in 1997 in Corporate Development and after nearly three years at SPE, Scott served as the VP of Business Development & Strategic Planning for Sony Pictures Digital Entertainment (SPDE) where he helped incubate and form the Movielink IP VOD joint venture.

Following the formation of Movielink, Mr. Sherr left SPDE and spent one year as Vice President of Strategic Planning at Movielink.

Scott returned to SPE in March 2003. Prior to joining SPE in 1997, Mr. Sherr worked at Lehman Brothers in the media and communications IBD group for three years both in New York and London."

Scott Sherr did NOT invent the Back Bone Technology of MovieFly LLC, Which became MovieLink LLC. Scott Sherr, claims to be one of the inventors and Scott Sherr is NOT.

the Question is Who at the USPTO aided and abetted this Corruption ?

Sony and Warner Bros involved in Stealing iViewit Technology

"Universal, Disney Back Rollout Of Digital Cinema Equipment

"Alternative content, and 3-D in particular, have definitely ignited the momentum," says Julian Levin, executive vice president for digital exhibition at Fox, which is releasing director James Cameron's next movie, "Avatar," in 3-D next year. "Those weren't thought of as the driving factors early on, but they became extremely significant."

By approving long-term agreements, the studios lock in a price per film that will likely be higher for distributors that don't commit to continuing financing. The studios that aren't yet participating, like Sony and Warner, are in talks with DCIP.

"We're working on trying to make a deal that is economically responsible for our company, whether it happens next week or whether it happens next month," says Dan Fellman, president of distribution at Warner Bros.

At Sony, "digital is very important and critical to our strategy," says Scott Sherr, senior vice president of digital cinema operations.

"We're moving carefully and thoughtfully and deliberately."

A separate arm of Sony, Sony Electronics, is deploying advanced high-resolution digital projectors known as 4K, meaning they have more than 4000 pixels per horizontal line. Most digital projectors on the market are 2K, meaning they have more than 2000 pixels per horizontal line."

Scott Sherr Sony Says

"At Sony, "digital is very important and critical to our strategy," says Scott Sherr, senior vice president of digital cinema operations.

"We're moving carefully and thoughtfully and deliberately." "

REALLY? I don't Think SO, Scott Sherr's Strategy is Stealing Technology and then benefitting from the Inventions by Claimin to the US Patent Office that he is one of the Inventors when HE is NOT. "carefully" "thoughtful" NO WAY.. "deliberately" YA deliberately stealing this video technology that allows SONY to Be so Boastful.
