Eliot,

I have not spoken with Rachel about your use of the club.

Nobody has used the club as far as I know.

Dad was over the minimum, all credits were used. Any use of the club dining room or spa would have been charged to the member account and payment would have to be made, like he was doing each month. I am looking into whether or not the club membership can be suspended in order to save money, since it is not being used.

The condo has not been used. Other than having it cleaned and repairs made, it is only being shown by Sotheby's. If anyone goes to the condo, security there will not grant them entry unless I have called them in prior to their arrival. Of course, this is not directed at anyone individually, just overall security precautions. As I am responsible for the two properties, it is least complicated for me to keep their use to a minimum. With all this added responsibility, I am trying to manage everything as best I can, realizing I only have so much time in a day. To start using the houses would only make things more time consuming for me and probably increase the costs, which I am trying to keep at an absolute minimum. I have gotten rid of every service for both properties except for water, electric, pest control, cleaning and maintenance.

I have not forgotten about meeting you guys there for some of the things mentioned below. In dealing with the Maritza issue, Sotheby's, and appraisal quotes for Mom and Dad's personal assets, it's just been a matter of time.

I'll keep you posted...

Ted, spoke to Rachel who I asked to check about using the gym at the club as the family has club credits we are paying for and must use each month. She said you told her I could not use the gym or club to continue our family workouts as only owners of the house could use the club or enter the property, which Rachel stated is only you and Deborah. Please explain and what are the dollar amounts on the credits are and are you using them?

Also, I asked you several weeks ago about stopping by the house to get some of the things we could use that nobody else would be wanting, towels, sheets, kitchen utensils, etc. and you were getting back to me when to meet but I have not heard back. Also, in the next few weeks we would like to use the Condo and last time we went there they excluded us from using the property under strict orders from unknown, what is the story on that???

Eliot

Hi,

I can tell you what I know.

I have not heard anything about the autopsy from the state. Pam called the other day and is waiting on a returned call.

The insurance proceeds are currently going through the normal claim process.

I would imagine it could take up to another month or so to finalize.

The houses are for sale and are not getting much action. I have lowered the price which did not seem to have much impact yet. Of course, the costs continue each month so I am watching the market closely and will consider another reduction right after the holidays.

I think we are finally getting a good handle on all the debts owed and the expenses. Based on the net amounts available, the quicker we get things done, the better. In that vein, keep in mind that every communication with Robert Spallina's office is an expense that goes against what is ultimately available for the grandchildren trusts.

Call me any time.

Hi Guys

Has anyone heard news about the autopsy?

What is going on with insurance money?

What is going on with the houses? Any bites?
