It’s Spreading: New York Times Calls For Cheney And Bush Officials To Be Indicted For Torture

AUTHOR: RYAN DENSON DECEMBER 22, 2014 2:11 PM

It seems the world is starting to rise up against the Bush Administration after the release of the torture report. Yesterday, news broke that a human rights organization in Germany, with the aide of an international lawyer, were filing charges against the entire Bush administration for illegal, torturous practices on an innocent man. Now, it’s hitting here in America. The New York Times is calling for the investigation and indictment of the Bush Adminstration for war crimes.

In their blistering, hard-hitting Monday morning article “Prosecute Torturers and Their Bosses,” the New York Times editorial board is asking that the Department of Justice prosecute those who “committed torture and other serious crimes,” which includes former Vice President Dick Cheney and other major officials within the Bush Admin.

The board referred to the torture practices as “a vast criminal conspiracy, under color of law, to commit torture and other serious crimes.”

Surprising Ways to Reduce Neuropathy Nerve Pain

...any credible investigation should include former Vice President Dick Cheney; Mr. Cheney’s chief of staff, David Addington; the former C.I.A. director George Tenet; and John Yoo and Jay Bybee, the Office of Legal Counsel lawyers who drafted what became known as the torture memos,” the editorial reads. “There are many more names that could be considered, including Jose Rodriguez Jr., the C.I.A. official who ordered the destruction of the videotapes; the psychologists who devised the torture regimen; and the C.I.A. employees who carried out that regimen.”

“These are, simply, crimes. They are prohibited by federal law, which defines torture as the intentional infliction of “severe physical or mental pain or suffering.” They are also banned by the Convention Against Torture, the international treaty that the United States ratified in 1994 and that requires prosecution of any acts of torture.

According to the editorial, the American Civil Liberties Union is poised to send a personal letter to Attorney General Eric Holder, calling for the appointment of a special prosecutor to investigate the war crimes committed by Cheney, et al.

But the buck doesn’t stop with Cheney and Bush. The editorial also sharply criticizes President Barack Obama for failing “to bring to justice anyone responsible for the torture of terrorism suspects,” during his presidency.

“Starting a criminal investigation is not about payback; it is about ensuring that this never happens again and regaining the moral credibility to rebuke torture by other governments. Because of the Senate’s report, we now know the distance officials in the executive branch went to rationalize, and conceal, the crimes they wanted to commit. The question is whether the nation will stand by and allow the perpetrators of torture to have perpetual immunity for their actions,” the editorial concluded.

Keep the heat coming. What a nice Christmas present it would be if Cheney, Bush, Rumsfeld, Rice, Tenet, et al. were indicted for their atrocities which have forever stained our nation’s reputation.

Yeah, I mean america just about died when Clinton got a blow job in the oval office... I mean the poor bastard even got impeached for lying about getting his b.j. People were all over it saying how he'd damaged America's credibility etc... I mean really???

This article is absolutely right, if America lets them get away with this, the idea that we would try to hold other nations accountable its just a joke.

It would have only been a problem if no one knew and Clinton could have been blackmailed about it. Everyone knew so where was the threat? I think the repubs were so upset because they have to pay someone to get a BJ.

Well said. Our treatment of Guantanamo prisoners has been the single greatest recruiting tool that "terrorist" organizations have.

Mark Smith Also... I thought Abu Gharib was bad, but apparently not as bad as I thought. Teenage boys were raped by U.S. troops, in front of their mothers. I just read about this. My bet is that those teenage boys who were sodomized are now members of ISIS. I know I'd want revenge. Here's the link...

Bush, Cheney, Rumsfeld, Rice, Powell, Wolfowitz, Rove, and all other co-conspirators of the illegal invasion of Iraq and subsequent slaughter of more than 100,000 of its wholly innocent men, women and children represent a malignant national cancer that needs to be excised. Every day that these utterly worthless, despicable subhuman filth remain free from incarceration is one more day that every single American should feel nothing but shame for our complicity in their crimes against humanity.

While I understand the reasons that President Obama chose to move on, I believe it is appropriate to see people stand in the dock for these crimes, especially considering their (apparently) unrepentant nature regarding them. If we sign a treaty we should stand up for the agreement. Of course, we signed lots of treaties with the Native Americans and then pretty much ignored almost all of them when they seemed inconvenient to follow.

This Country has far too many times hidden from the consequences from investigation. Imagine if in 2000, we had a Supreme Court that said, "We will investigate every single vote in the whole state of Florida. This will be done to assure the people of the US and the World that our elections are honest. This and the Supreme Court that was hatched because of it, are the basis of many of our problems today. Begin here and scrub the torture system clean. Guilty people should be Jailed. the innocent dismissed.

Imagine if the NTSB had been able to investigate and report on their findings on the airline crashes especially the Pentagon on September 11. They are the only authority qualified to do so and were blocked by the Bush administration for what reason?? To hide the truth!!

It is used to manufacture the evidence that the torturer wants. Unfortunately, that "evidence" is not the truth.

I sent Eric Holder a copy of Judgement at Nurenberg asking him to consider the arguments in the film in light of the Bush torture. Also, I think it would be great if Amnesty International would buy the land across the street from the Bush Library and open a Museum of Torture showing what was done.
